“ I saw the obituary in Sunday's newspaper; my condolences to all of you. This is such a small thing, but when I visited your home as a high school student, I remember your Dad coming home from work with a cheerful "hello" - I don't know if he was always that way, but that's the vivid memory I have, it was very different from the household where I was growing up, and it so impressed me I always remembered it and took on the habit as an adult in my own home. I hope you all have fond memories of your Dad.
