“ To a beautiful soul, Anna May: Thank you for being my Grandmother. Your sweetness, innocence, and gentle spirit will always be with me leaving an ever unfolding impact on my life. Thank you for the joy and care you brought to my life from the beginning. I know you are still with us just in a new form. I see your energy in gentle winds, bunny rabbits, and soft rainfall. May you follow the yellow brick road back home to the place where you can be free.

I'm lighting a purple candle in your honor, remembering your love for the color and your purple lipstick. <3

“ My Mother Dolores Forceno-Griffin went to school with Anna May and Jack. They were friends for many years. I remember her taking me with her to Lenora to visit when I was a young girl. I'm sorry for your loss and the grief that goes along with a family member with Alzheimer's. My Mom turned 94 today and has been suffering with dementia for 10 years. Anna May is free now.
