“ I find it hard to actually believe such an amazing woman, so filled with life is gone. Barb was the pillar of strength and determination. She was one in a million. For me, her generosity is what set her apart. I admired the way she was always so "put together." It was an honor to have known her. Barb really loved her city. I truly appreciated her walking tours over the Ben Franklin Bridge & through Philadelphia. I will forever hold a special place in my heart for our pink sister. Our 3 Day family won't be the same without her. Much love to the Shepard family. May you find comfort in your memories during this difficult time. Know that she was loved by so many. What beautiful legacy she has left behind.

“ My favorite memory will always be of the morning we "tata fairy'd up" and hustled $1100+ in front of WaWa. The funny comments, the words of encouragement, the personal breast cancer stories people shared...but most the giggles. We laughed all morning and before we knew it, half the day was gone. There will never be another like you. I will forever miss you forever and promise to keep your hope for a cure alive. A pink sister NEVER walks alone. Rest, Friend....xo

Barb, I still can't believe you are gone. Sunday evening I not only lost a forever friend I lost a sister a piece of my family. This is the hardest thing I have had to deal with since the loss of my sister and mom. Our circle of friends has been broken and our hearts ache. You were such an inspiration to all of us Barb. Your smile was one that could not compare to any other. Your were full of life and your energy and enthusiasm inspired me. I could write a book on all of our adventures and memories through the years Barb. These memories I will cherish forever and hold them within my heart. You were one of a kind and I was blessed to have you in my circle. I love you Barbie, Rest in peace my loving friend and sister. John, Tara, Matt, Johnny and Alina, We love you. We could never replace what you lost but we will walk by your side and be there for what ever you might need .

Love, Barbara and Paul
