“ I am so grateful for all of the memories with Mommom. I will forever treasure the summer days I spent at her house doing crafts and chatting till late at night. And the more recent relationship conversations we have had during which she made me hysterically laugh and gave the best advice. I miss her hugs, her smile, and her love.

“ Some might say Betty Jane was just a wife and mother. She was much more. She and Cliff shared a love story that produced four great sons. She loved them all with the love all of us should have for family. Her life defined goodness, and she will be remembered by everyone who knew her.
RIP Aunt Becky. If there is a heaven, you are there with the love of your life.

“ Mommom, I miss you so much and will think of you always. I will always remember Easter egg hunts in your backyard, building fairy houses in your gardens, and waking you up early on Christmas to watch us go through our stockings. Thank you for teaching me about true love, for helping me cook and needlepoint, for always believing in me, and for lending me books that I always accidentally kept. Now I can read those books again and again and think of you every time. I'm so lucky to have had 25 years to make memories with you. I love you so much.
