You were the heart of our home and my most trusted friend. We shared everything together. You and I were connected in a deep abiding love that transcends beyond death and this world. I love you still with all my heart. I don't know how I am going to move forward without you in my life but I will try for you. I will always remember your smile, your unique laugh and most of all your warm embrace every night before you went to bed and telling me how much you love me.
