My husband and I were friends with Rich for the last 15+ years and loved spending time talking about everything automotive and guns! He was a great friend and is extremely missed!!! We're so sorry we were out of state when he passed, but we know he's going to continue to guide us as he liked to do! Semper Fi

“ I never called him Rich. He was always Lab, and he was a character in the very best sense of the word. He had a bond with his students that was genuine and mutual. He really cared about them, and they respected him. If he was occasionally frustrated by one of them, and I agreed that he should be mad, he would then defend them.

I always looked forward to seeing him during the day. I have to admit there were times I didn't know what he was talking about. But I knew he was right
He was one of a kind. Rest in peace Lab.

“ One of thee best teachers at Pennsauken high. A Proud marine that we would tease sometime about having a flashback as we called them if he got mad and yelled at us (which rarely ever happen).As long as you brought him a coffee or sandwich from jimmy’s lunch truck you could go there when ever you where hungry. He got me out of detention many of times. I will always remember what he told me in auto class. I think I drive a Ford pickup truck today because of him. You will be missed my friend.

*He took such good care of our cars, allowing the students to learn on them. And they did excellent work under his teaching and guidance.
Rest in peace Mr. Labriola*
