“ I'm going to miss my poppop so much. His random text messages telling me his phone don't work or his remote control isn't working and me running over there to fix it. Having the pleasure of driving him to his Dr appts and him telling me to slow down or stop at the stop sign. Him getting anxious at the appointments after just 5 minutes of waiting. I will miss his phone calls, our visits, him telling my daughters all about the navy and his stories, and brining him thanksgiving and Xmas dinner almost every year, last how proud he was of me and my girls... I love you so much poppop I will cherish all my pictures I have and the voicemails you left me.
